3. Major reasons for the estimated increase in profit for the period

At the beginning of 2020, due to the dual impact of the COVID-19 epidemic and the plunge in oil prices, the global consumption of petroleum and petrochemical products shrunk sharply, greatly impacting the Company's production and operation and resulting in operating loss in the first half of 2020. In the first half of 2021, the Company's operating performance improved significantly on year-on-year basis, achieving better growth as compared with the corresponding period in 2019. The major reasons are as follows: Since the beginning of the current year, with the global epidemic situation improving in general, the international crude oil prices have appeared upwards trend. The achievements arising from coordination of domestic epidemic prevention and control and economic and social development have continued to be consolidated, and the market demand for petroleum and petrochemical products recovered rapidly. The Company seized the favourable opportunity to reduce procurement costs, optimise production and operation, vigorously expand the market and sales volume, and promote the overall efficiency of the industrial chain. The operation of all our business segments have been greatly improved, thereby achieving good performance.
